

GENERAL NEWS.

The resignation of the Italian ministry is announced.

Six thousand coal miners on the Monongahela river threaten to strike on May 1.

Large sums of money were sent to the Southwestern strikers by sympathizers.

The nail makers' strike, lasting eight months, appears to be on the eve of a settlement.

Arrangements are making for a Dwight L. Moody campaign at Chicago to supplement the work of Jones and Small.

A. N. Kellogg, the head of the great ready print house, Cleveland, Chicago and St. Louis, died, in Florida, March 23rd.

The weather of late has been so exceptionally severe in the south of England that large numbers of returning song birds have been frozen to death.

Though green peas are in bloom in the eastern counties of North Carolina, the roads in the southwest part of the State are even yet half blocked with snow.

A question likely soon to come to the fore is the practicability of tunneling between England and Ireland. At one point the distance under is twenty-two miles.

Miss Geneva Armstrong, one of the teachers of music in Elmira College, has invented and patented a device for feeding and watering cattle while they are journeying in cattle cars.

The special mail delivery system is voted to be a great annoyance by postal clerks, who have to keep a sharp watch for a few letters bearing its stamp while sorting thousands of two-centers.

The Central Labor Union of New York has adopted a preamble calling Jay Gould "an arch enemy of the republic," and saying that "it is the intention and purpose of the great enemy of the American people to destroy all labor organizations."

A steer was killed by a Virginia City butcher the other day, whose teeth, the Enterprise says, were completely encrusted with gold and silver bullion. The animal came from a ranch on Garson River, and it is thought the metal accumulated on his teeth while he was drinking the river water, which is impregnated with the tailings from the mills reducing Comstock ores.

Matilda Simons, 14 years old, died at 82 Attorney street at 2 A. M. yesterday after a series of violent convulsions. Last Friday she bought a large green cucumber pickle in Dreyfus's grocery, at Delancy and Allen streets, and ate it. That night she ate three hard-boiled eggs, with fish and lemon. During that night she was seized with violent convulsions. Deputy Corner O'Meagher thinks she died of gastritis, caused by copper poisoning from the pickle, and of acute indigestion. N. Y. Sun.

An extraordinary scene was witnessed in Dublin lately. Rossini, an acrobat from Ginnett's circus, undertook to walk faster upon stilts than a Rathmines tramcar going in its ordinary course along Stephen's Green. He proceeded upon stilts twenty feet high, got ahead of the car, and kept his place till opposite the College of Surgeons, when one of the stilts coming in contact with an obstacle in the crowded roadway, he fell and was somewhat hurt. The race was for a wager of £20.

The Government of Uruguay is disposed to adopt no half measures in order to retain its home markets for its own people. The imposition of heavy duties on goods is not sufficient. Commercial travellers are to be taxed. The number of these has increased to such an extent in the territory of the republic that the merchants have complained that their business is almost paralyzed. In consequence the Government has decided that commercial travellers not residing in Uruguay and not representing a house established in the country must obtain a license, the cost of which will be $2,500 in gold. The license must be paid in advance and renewed every year.

NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE.

Competition among the newspaper reporters sometimes leads them into ways that are dark and tricks that are vain. A reporter was once sent to report the sermon of a celebrated but very devout and solemn Presbyterian clergyman. It was the funeral oration of a distinguished member of his church. The reporter did not rise early enough, and when he arrived at the church, the clergyman had finished. Waiting upon him after the service, he asked the loan of the good man's manuscript. The obliging clergyman took it out of his overcoat pocket and handed it to the reporter, who, delighted at his easy task, wrote a hasty introduction, and, without further delay, went off to spend the Sabbath with his best girl. It was a funeral discourse, the subject of which was a man well known in the city for his great piety, sincerity, purity and benevolence. Being Sunday, the discourse got into the printer's hands, and the night editor was horrified at its beginning thus:

"Among his friends and dupes, he acquired, by a most persistent hypocrisy, a reputation for sanctity, which by means of a doleful whine and obtrusive cant, he maintained to his very last breath. So inveterate was his habit that, when on his deathbed, and his spiritual adviser whispered to him that there was pardon for the vilest sinner, he retorted, 'I am glad of it; there are so many of them that need it so much more than I do,' etc."

Had not the editor put his blue pencil through the whole article, the city would have rung next day with this scandalous discourse about the worthy man. The obliging clergyman had, accidentally, on leaving his house, put on his eldest son's overcoat, and instead of his funeral oration, had handed to the reporter a magazine article, written by his son, about a notorious and pious fraud, who had died in England one hundred years before.

ANIMAL INTELLIGENCE.

The semi-wild Texas cattle display great intelligence in the care and protection of their calves. Suppose the range is in a country where coyotes and gray wolves roam during the night, and through the day, too, if they are hungry, in search of food, preferably young and tender veal. From the large number of these carnivorous animals constantly seen, and from the vigor of their midnight and main choruses, a stranger on the range would judge that not a calf would escape their fangs. The tireless animals almost ceaselessly roam to and fro over the range. They beat the ground quite thoroughly. They catch large numbers of rabbits. They sit in groups on their haunches outside of corrals and vociferously howl their disappointment at the prevailing scarcity of beef and veal. Cows about to become mothers leave the herd and seek seclusion in the tall blue-joint grass, or in plum thickets. A few hours after its birth the calf is strong enough to walk. The cows then lead them 200 or 300 yards away from the spot where they were born, and there they hide them. In some mysterious manner they convey to the calf the information that it must be perfectly still; that in motionless silence is safety; that violent death stalks closely after calflike friskiness.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

Madisonville is one of the most flourishing of the many suburban towns of Cincinnati. It is situated about fourteen miles from the city on the line of the Cincinnati, Washington and Baltimore Railroad. Our correspondent learning of the severe case of Mrs. John G. Lindsley and her sudden cure, called on that lady at her home in Madisonville. Said Mrs. Lindsley:

"Words would scarcely express the torture I endured. The rheumatism I had was in no particular part of the body, but was all through my system, prostrating me so that I was entirely helpless, not being able to feed myself. My physician, who is one that we have employed in our family for many years, gave me no encouragement whatever. He said there was no use of my taking medicine, as I never would be any better, but might live in this terrible condition for many years. About this time my son was recommended to get some Athlaphora for me by Charles H. Howard, conductor on the Cincinnati, Washington and Baltimore Railroad. Mr. Howard said it was an excellent medicine, as he had used it himself. On the strength of this recommendation my son brought some home for me to try, but as I had already used so many different kinds of medicines without ever getting relief I was somewhat reluctant about taking any more, thinking they were all alike—no good. But such was not the case with Athlaphora. After taking only part of a bottle my pain ceased and I was able to walk about. The change was so sudden and so miraculous that I could scarcely realize that I was getting well. I used about eight bottles, and since then I have not suffered any to speak of."

At the general store of Aikens & Hensel Mr. E. A. Hensel said:

"I have been subject to neuralgia of the stomach for many years. To say I have used many kinds of medicines without any benefit would be a very moderate way to put it, but I can say that I would not take $1,000 for what two and one-half bottles of Athlaphora has done for me."

"Then it has cured you of the neuralgia of the stomach?"

"Yes; and we now sell it in the store."

"Having used it so satisfactorily yourself you no doubt sell considerable on your own recommendation?"

"Yes; we do. I make it a point to say a good word for Athlaphora whenever I can, as it has done for me what all other medicines and doctors combined had failed to accomplish."

Charles H. Howard, conductor on the accommodation train of the Cincinnati, Washington and Baltimore Railroad, and a resident of Chillicothe, Ohio, is well-known to the patrons of that road. Many of his friends and acquaintances will doubtless remember of his being afflicted with rheumatism so that for five and a half months he was laid up and detained from his duties as conductor. Said Mr. Howard to one of our correspondents: "Athlaphora is the medicine that brought me back to my duties, after being laid up so many months. After I had used about every kind of remedy I ever heard of I commenced with Athlaphora. I took my first dose on Friday. On the following Monday I dispensed with cane and went to work, where I have been without losing any time ever since. I consider it an excellent medicine for rheumatism and would advise any one so afflicted to give it a trial."

If you cannot get ATHLAPHORA of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed. ATHLAPHORA CO., 112 Wall Street, New York.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Should be kept constantly at hand, for use in emergencies of the household. Many a mother, startled in the night by the ominous sounds of Croup, finds the little sufferer, with red and swollen face, gasping for air. In such cases Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is invaluable. Mrs. Emma Gedney, 159 West 123 st., New York, writes: "While in the country, last winter, my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with Croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral was tried in small and frequent doses, and, in less than half an hour, the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the Pectoral saved my darling's life." Mrs. Chas. B. Landon, Guilford, Conn., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Saved My Life,

and also the life of my little son. As he is troubled with Croup, I dare not be without this remedy in the house." Mrs. J. Gregg, Lowell, Mass., writes: "My children have repeatedly taken Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for Coughs and Croup. It gives immediate relief, followed by cure." Mrs. Mary E. Evans, Scranton, Pa., writes: "I have two little boys, both of whom have been, from infancy, subject to violent attacks of Croup. About six months ago we began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it acts like a charm. In a few minutes after the child takes it, he breathes easily and rests well. Every mother ought to know what a blessing I have found in Ayer's Cherry Pectoral." Mrs. Wm. C. Reid, Freehold, N. J., writes: "In our family, Ayer's medicines have been blessings for many years. In cases of Colds and Coughs, we take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and the inconvenience is soon forgotten."

April 11.—James Houston, a well known resident of Morgantown, W. Va., is dying from a most peculiar cause. He has forty-two rifle bullets in his stomach. These bullets Houston swallowed at divers times as a cure for costiveness, and all attempts of physicians to remove them have proved futile.

"I have not had any ache or pain in the rheumatic line since using your medicine—Athlaphora; two years ago. It has made a thorough cure in my case," is the written testimony of Mrs. Ella Smith, 61 North Foster street, Springfield, O.

A farmer of Ithaca, N. Y., had to defer the completion of some important legal papers the other day because, after trying for twenty minutes in his lawyer's office to recollect the full name of his wife, he failed to do so.

For constitutional or scrofulous catarrh, and for consumption induced by the scrofulous taint, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the true remedy. It has cured numberless cases. It stops catarrhal discharges, and removes the sickening odor—indications of scrofula.

A very interesting discovery is said to have been made by the experts who are now examining the collection of papi consisting of many thousand rolls, which were found at El Fayoum, in Egypt, and were acquired by the Archduke Rainer. The experts declare that among the rolls are several autograph letters of the Prophet Mahomet.

The meed of merit for promoting personal aesthetics is due to J. C. Ayer & Co., whose Hair Vigor is a universal beautifier of the hair. Harmless, effective, agreeable, it ranks among indispensable articles of the toilet. To scanty locks it gives luxuriance; and withered hair it cloths with the hue of youth.
